

COURSE: IDS 4912-OW61 REVIVING THE PAST: RESEARCHING LOST COMMUNITIES

Once comprised of minority populations, many communities around the United States have been lost, stolen, removed, or marginalized. This semester-long study away course aims to research this growing trend in Lincolntown, the African American historic district, in St. Augustine, Florida.

WHY: You'll be able to tell the story of Lincolntown's past and present and gain an understanding of implications for the future. You'll also earn three credit hours.

WHO: Open to ALL UCF undergraduates

COST: $200 which covers lodging, transportation, meals, and scheduled academic activities (visit to Fort Mose, Lincolntown Historical Museum and Cultural Center, etc.)
