

APPENDIX A

StoryCenter

StoryCenter has a huge archive of digital stories from their ongoing international workshops:

Fair Use and copyrights, especially for music

There is so much free music out there that I feel strongly that the music used in digital stories should be public domain, free by definition or cleared with written permission from the copyright owners.

This is an excellent website that does a very good job of winnowing down what teachers should know about copyright and fair use in educational environments:

Creative Commons is the best resource for free to use images.
