Celebrating Success

This time of year is always special for me. As we enter the holiday season and look forward to the new year, I am grateful for the College of Undergraduate Studies community. As an alum, you've helped to shape our college.

Fueled by a commitment to innovation, excellence, and distinction, we have accomplished a great deal, including:

- Introducing the Bachelor of Integrative Studies degree program and awarding the 1,000th degree in May 2022.
- Creating the Klocman Family Scholarship for students pursuing a degree in Integrative General Studies and the College of Undergraduate Studies Scholarship for Interdisciplinary Studies majors.
- Awarding more than $50,000 in scholarships to students to help them pay for educational expenses.
- Presenting Kennon Adkinson '08 and Dan Green '20 with the College of Undergraduate Studies Distinguished Alumni Award.

Know that your support of the College of Undergraduate Studies makes a real difference in the lives of our students. Thank you for your generosity on Giving Tuesday. Your gifts help our students pay for educational expenses and prepare them for career success.

Happy Holidays!

Welcome New Alums!

Recently, hundreds of College of Undergraduate Studies students experienced a once-in-a-lifetime experience - walking across the graduation stage. We are delighted to welcome them to our alumni community. We are proud of our alums and all you've accomplished! Watch the highlight video.

Berry Makes Changes to Eliminate Obstacles to Graduation

Theodorea Regina Berry, the Vice Provost and Dean of the College of Undergraduate Studies, has spent her career helping students succeed academically and earn a life-changing college degree.

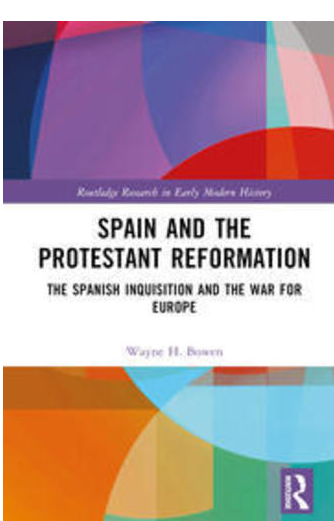

She joined UCF in January 2020 and, in less than two months, had to assist students and faculty members pivot to remote learning because of Covid. Berry never wavered from her commitment to growing the College of Undergraduate Studies and putting students first. Learn about Berry's plans to help every Knight thrive in her profile written by Reanna Haase in NSM Today. Read the article.

Increasing Number of Women Studying Environmental Science

The number of women pursuing degrees in environmental science is on the rise. It's also true at UCF. In spring 2022, nearly three times as many women graduated from the program as men.

An article recently published in NSM Today takes a deep dive into the trend. Read the article.

Bowen Publishes Ninth Book

UCF College of Undergraduate Studies Interim Associate Dean and Department of History Professor Wayne Bowen published his ninth book, "Spain and the Protestant Reformation: The Spanish Inquisition and the War for Europe." Learn more.
